A VALIANT FIGHT.

How Rochester, N. Y., Wrestled With the Telephone and Won?

Rochesier, N. Y., is the only city in the United States which does not generally use the Bell telephone;
Gn the 20th of November, ISS6, ubout seven hundred subscribers
hing up their 'phenes, and they have A MYSTERY OF MODERN VENICE.

It is the most noieworthy fight with a corporation ever known. The cause of it was the attampt of the local Bell company whose officers the local Bell company whose one creater all lived in another city) to exact a rate per message from the subscribcre, instead of a "flatrate." The people resisted it, the courts sustained the position that the license was rate was his at will the Common Connell revoked it. The company ignorad this action, and, without permission, cracked poles in the streets and string additional wires; but the courts held that this was unlawful.

According to the massage rate, a honse like H. H. Warner & Co., proprictors of Warner's safe enre, who were among tha heaviest patrons, would have to pay something like $1,000 a year for the same telephone services as before icn as before.

The particle of the gun is the same as that of the gun which bears Dr. Gatling's name, and is so widely known. The improvement is in the method of feading. In the police gun a msgazina, holding aixty-two cartridges and looking like the hopper of a cornabellar, is set up on ond at a right angle on the top of the brase harral. The turning of the handle by the cannonser drops the cartridges into six revolving barrels within the cannon. As the barrels revolves lock with a spiral spring catches each cartridge and a small needle in the lock strikes the percussion cap, exploding ft. The next instant an extractor catches the empty shells from the gun. When one magazine is empty another stands ready to take its pisce. As the empty shells fall in a stream from the orlfica, it looks for all the world like a country corn-sheller with the denuded coba dropping to the floor as the farm hand turns the crank. By a long lever the canuouser can with his left linand changs the range of the gun, shoot up or down or side ways, while with the right hand he turns the crank that puts the stream of cartridges in motion.

The tower is ilesigned to be 98 feet high, or nearly twice the height of the Washington Monnment, and, if constructed, will be twice as high as any artificial structure on the globe. The builders say that the most difficult part of thair work will be completed by the close of this year, when they expect to have the first story, 150 feet high, constructed. Three thousand tows of iron will be used in this section alone. It is expected that the tower can be wholly completed by October of next year, it is to be built chiefly as an exhibit of engineering skill, but it is to be used during the exhibition as an observatory, and if it should reach its extended height will be one of the wonders for the Preuch exhibition; but of the world. MARKETING HONEY.

As the large narkets are nearly always over-stocked, it is important that we market as much of our boacy as possibio ia country villages and small citles. Of course, where the erop is in tons it can not all be disposed of in this way, but it is a too common mistake to send the entire crop to some of the large markets and noglect the home trade. I believe that this has more to do with the low prices of boney than over-production Markettug honey in villages is many times a discouraging business for the novice, but it pays to develop a market In such places. The plan that usually succeeds best is to let the merchant seli on commission. Some merchants refuse to sell honey at first, thinking that it will doub their other goods and that it is not convenient to handle, but they can usually be laduced to try it when it is shown to them put up in neat and attractivo cases. Tho new pastebourd box le proving aplendid thing for the retail trade. Each section oeing inclosed in a sep arate box, there is no drainage nno every thing is kept neat and clean. All the merchant has to do when he aclis a box is to hand it out to the enstomer. Whon putting up honey for market too much care can not be taken to have it thoroughly graded and priced according to quality. For retalling extracted honey I have found no better way than putting It up in plat and quart fruit jars. It put up In this will not candy and will keep any length of time. There is nearly always a demand for a good article at a fair price; while a poor article will many times not sell at any price.

As we can not compet people to buy our honcy we should endeavor to produce only a first-class articlo and then put it up in neat, attractive shape for market.-O. G Russell, in Farm and Home.

Jay Gould's Daughter.

Nellie Gould is one of the brightest little ladies in the city. She has been fully educated and ts highly accom-plished. She is an artist of no mean bility and her collection of bric-n-brac which has been adorned by her penci and brush, has been greatly admired She dresses plainly, but richly, and do we have to exercise our individual when in town can be seen any afternoon driving through the park with one of her brothers. Sis is probably the richest heiress in America, and at her father's death will come in for $20,000,000 or $30,000,000. ### JAVANESE POISONS.

Life-Deatroying Substances Obtained from Trees and Shruba.

Java and the archipelage generally ia tha center of poisons, nnimal and vegetable, and no races are so prone to make use of them as the varied tribes grouped under the general name of Malay. The 'kris," or serpontine dagger, which has become almost a symbol of treachery and revenge, has n terribla reputation; but from my own observation, I almost doubt if it is ever poisoned at all in the real sense of the word. The Malay never grinds the kris, but is always rubbing the blade with a green lomon, or the julce of a pinenpple, mixed with orpiment eaces from partles who wish to rent houses. A gentleman who had rein time a rough damascene is formed. ently moved to New York and was with a notchy edge, and the effect of a wound from n weapon of this sort needs no explanation to mny one who has suffered from n rusty nail or needle. I have seen the Balak creeping, sumpitant in hand, to where a troop of gilbons were yelling their noisy chorns from a lofty tree-top, and scarcely half a minute clapsed between the dispatch of the missive and the crashing fall of the struck ape. Even the gigantic and formidable species of the onrang-ontang, which haunts the forests of the east coast, fails paralyzed by two or three of these tiny darts.

An Honest Physician's Candid Ac knowledgement.

Occasionally there are candld and fearless men in the medical profession who, though strict adherents and exponents of a professional "ethics" are ret too nobie-minded to be hampered by prejudices and superstition about ethics" when suffering humanity is concerned, men who will speak the concerned, men who win speak the fruth as they know it in behalf of anything, and lo whom a proprietary medicine is not a scare-crow nor a bugaboo, simply because it goes by that name, but who investigate its merits by experiments, and when it proves to be what it claims to be, at once step to the front and frankly acknowledge its merits and command it to suffering humanity everywhere. Such a man is Dr. J. N. Cheney, an cminent and well known physician, living at Eilaville, Schloy, county, Georgia, who, in a letter to the Swift Specific Company, daled March 21, 1887, says, in reference to their fa-

This tree probably gave rise to the fables about the upas ("upas" is Javanese for poison of any kind). The upas poison, however, requires to be used quite frosh, as a few homes' exposure to the air converts it to a crumbly black rosh, quite harmless. Another poison is obtained from a species of vine-bearing clusters of Lright fruit, the size of a cricket bail, containing a number of seeds in an intensely litter with a fill of the size of a cricket bail, containing a number of seeds in an intensely litter with a fill of the size of a cricket bail, containing a number of seeds in an intensely litter with a fill of the size of a cricket bail, containing a number of seeds in an intensely litter with a fill of the containing a number of seeds in an intensely litter with a fill of the containing a number of seeds in an intensely litter with a fill of the containing a number of seeds in an intensely litter with a fill of the containing a number of seeds in an intensely litter with a fill of the containing a number of seeds in an intensely litter with a fill of the containing a number of seeds in an intensely litter with a fill of the containing a number of seeds in an intensely litter with a fill of the containing a number of seeds in an intensely litter with a fill of the containing a number of seeds in an intensely litter with a fill of the word section. One of the most fomous poisons of Java is obtained from the bamboo. The young shoots of the cane, when they first hippen, are covered with fine brownish hair; this, under a powerful microscope, appears as bayoact-like spikes of silex, intinitely sharp, and tillak hollow, though 1 could not be quite sure. This hair, adudulstered daily in small quantities of the food, brings on alceration of the bowels, simulating malignant dysentery. The action must be of a mochanical rather than chemical nature, just as with the terrible effect on the eyes of the spores of the common pull-ball. It is greatly
